SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 27

The body of a hermit, known as Pierre Grevy, was recently found in his hut near St. Regis Falls, New York. He was supposed to be the uncle of Jules Grevy, president of the French republic. Several old and queer articles seemed to verify this relationship.

Miles City, Montana, has the champion, toboggan slide. It reaches from the top of a hill 840 feet high, sloping gradually for five miles towards the city. If the prices of corner lots go up with the rapidity with which the riders can come come down, Miles City may look for a boom.

It must not be forgotten when the Pan-Electric matter is being considered, that what Garland, Lamar and Johnston seized with so much avidity and relish, Mr. Hewatt and Mr. Cox, refused to touch, taste or handle. The latter gentlemen could have had a million dollars worth of stock on the same terms as the rest of the beneficiaries, but the vast amount which was being distributed told in itself, the story of corruption. Hewitt and Cox saw the dishonesty of the transaction on its face.

The Madison Democrat takes occasion to pay Congressman Caswell the following compliment: New York parties are endeavoring to bull-doze Congressman Caswell into supporting the bankruptcy bill. A good bankruptcy bill might be a proper measure to pass, but Mr. Caswell will do well to be guided by his own judgment in supporting the bill offered. There is no necessity for his becoming alarmed to please somebody else. On measures not political he has usually been considered in this state a very safe congressman, and his judgment of a bankruptcy bill will be as good for Wisconsin as the judgment of any New York board of trade.

John King, of Cincinnati, or rather "Johnny" King, as he was generally known, was found dead in his bed on Wednesday morning. King was a strange character. He had been a newsboy for many years in that city. He was lame and had been from early youth. He had no home, and lived in an upper room of a store building. His kindly looking face, his genial manner, his uncommon intelligence, and his deformity, attracted people to him, and he met with large success as a newsboy. King was a diligent reader, and spent much money in reading good books. Up to 1878 he has collected and read 1,800 volumes of choice literature, and when he got so many that he could not provide a place for them, he gave them to the Cincinnati public library. This incident made Johnny King famous. He received the thanks of the city. His portrait appeared in Harper's Weekly accompanied with an interesting biographical sketch. His fame spread rapidly over the country, but he still went on selling newspapers, buying and reading books and giving them away. He was one of the best read men in Cincinnati, but refused to do anything but hobble on the street with a bundle of papers under his arms. His life was intensely active. Early morning and every evening, year after year, found him on the streets. His slender frame and his physical deformity made him unfit to contend with the storms and the cold which he constantly faced as a newsboy, and he wore himself out and died at the age of 46.

There is a good deal being said just now about the issues that will confront the republican party in 1888. In other words, the question is how shall the republican party be saved at the next presidential election? This matter was discussed at the Detroit banquet on Washington's birthday, when Senator Evarts, General Logan, Governor Foraker, and several other prominent republicans made speeches bearing directly on that question. In editorially speaking of the speeches, at the banquet, the Inter Ocean says the great question before the meeting was how to best "reunite the republican party for the contest of 1888. Senator Evarts, of New York, led off by declaring with characteristic emphasis that the republican party is the same now that it was in 1860. The same duties and the same responsibilities must be assumed, and the sooner all minor issues are subordinated to the main issue the quicker will victory come. The Inter Ocean then says: "General Logan spoke in the same strain, but with even more emphasis. Pointing to the disfranchised people in the south, he insisted that the work that the republican party had in hand demanded all its thought and all its strength. He was in favor of no half way measures." The Inter Ocean then quotes Gov. Foraker, of Ohio, in the same view, and closes in these words: "There was no mincing of words and no masking of purposes. Not the least significant thing about the meeting was that Senator Logan, very generally regarded as a representative of the western republicans, and Senator Evarts, speaking by right for the New York republicans voiced the same sentiment."

It is not a difficult thing to see how the republican party can be reunited in in 1888. It is not a difficult thing to understand how it can succeed at the next presidential election. The general principles of the party are the same now as they were in 1860. That is true enough. Some of the issues in that campaign are as dead as the almanacs of that year, and will probably never be revived, and ought not to be revived. The live questions of the day are the questions that must be discussed. They alone must enter into the great political contest which must come off three hence. There are enough of these questions to make the campaign interesting, and enough to keep the republican leaders busy during the contest with the party in power. When the people see that the republican party is in earnest in these things, and in general conduct, platforms, speeches and newspaper articles represent the progressive principles of the party and the advanced sentiment of the people on all public questions, there will be no difficulty in reuniting the party and in winning in the national contest of 1888. Then, again, the republican nominee in that campaign must be a man without a blemish in his official relations to the people. He must completely represent the highest principles in our politics and all that is best and practical in our civil service system. A candidate who can not be touched by the darts of malice or the shafts of envy, whose record is beyond criticism, and whose solid manhood will command universal respect, will unite the republican party and will not fail of an election.

SENATORIAL FLEXIBILITY.

The following colloquy in the United States senate on Thursday between two able southern senators is called "exciting" by some of the papers, but it seems to belong more properly to the humorous department:

Mr. George—I shall read the senator's own language and then I shall not misrepresent you.

Mr. Morgan—It does misrepresent me.

Mr. George—If I read your own language it will not misrepresent you.

Mr. Morgan—It does misrepresent me, and the senator knows it.

Mr. George—It is untrue; the statement made by the senator is simply untrue, and he knows it.

The abounding faith which Mr. George had that Mr. Morgan's language could be construed as indicating his meaning is touching and fraternal. And the candor with which Mr. Morgan confesses that his own language misrepresents him is refreshing and suggestive. Mr. Morgan's strong point is the constitution; that instrument he waves before the eyes of the august senate with more assiduity and with greater pertinacity than the bloody shirt was ever shaken before the dazed vision of the American people. Mr. Morgan is constant in season and out of season, in splitting the provisions of that venerated instrument into the most indistinguishable hairs; and when he gets them reduced to the last analysis, he is himself unable to determine on which side of a particular line the various hirsute samples belong. He is, in constitutional law, an astute and devoted student of the lamented John C. Calhoun;—and so ready is Mr. Morgan to accommodate himself to the vagaries and inconsistencies of that departed statesman, that he imitates not only his apparent but his imaginary excellencies. It is but a few days since, in a discussion with a brother senator, Mr. Morgan himself showed from history that Calhoun had been in favor of a protective tariff, and opposed to a protective tariff; that he had been in favor of internal improvements and opposed to internal improvements; that he had favored a United States bank and opposed a United States bank; that he had been a strict constructionist and a liberal constructionist; and that, in fact, he had been on both sides of almost every important question which ever came before the national legislature, during the thirty-six years he was in public life. This historical reminiscence was brought up by Mr. Morgan, to excuse his own flexibility on matters of public concern; therefore, when he responded to Mr. George that his own language did misrepresent him, he merely reflected his political education, and said that the words he uttered gave no clue to what he meant.

The reply of Mr. George would in the good old democratic times, have led to a meeting on the field of honor.

NO MORE BOYS.

Rev. Mr. Talmage recently said in a lecture "I am every day glad I am not a boy now, there is nothing for a boy to do. What is to become of bounding, robust, boyish nature in our cities? Plenty of opportunities for sinful entertainment but of harmless fun a complete bankruptcy. He cannot ride down hill, it is against the law. He cannot snowball, it is against the law. He cannot set off a pack of fire crackers to celebrate the birth of American Independence, it is against the law." Under the jocularity of these phrases there exists a vast amount of truth. Those pastimes, the indulgence in which is an essential part of a boys nature, and which constitute at once his diversion and his development, have to give way to the inexorable changes which follow the rapid filling up of our cities: the additional security which must be offered to elegant apparel, gorgeous residences, magnificent turn-outs and other evidences of royal wealth and to the restrained and elaborate manner in which he has to be costumed either for play or for school. The primitive days of happy relaxation are passed; the glowing and invigorating exercises in which youths were wont to indulge a generation ago, have practically disappeared; and instead of taking a tramp of a mile or two to skate or swim in the open air, these exercises are now practiced in a rink or a natatorium; instead of choosing sides and having a lively game of base-ball, modern youths pay fifty cents for a seat in the shade to watch somebody else do the playing; and instead of having some sleds, getting their companions of both sexes together and going to a neighboring hill for an evening's fun, in these degenerate days those who have sufficient energy, get some sticks and a ball, go out upon the sidewalks, and endanger the lives and limbs of the passers-by by a game to which is given the euphonious and significant title of "shinny."

It is true that there are centers of athletic exercises; and that where there are unnatural incentives and abundant conveniences,

" The immortal boy, the coming heir of all,
Springs from his desk to urge the flying ball;
Cleaves with his bending oar the glazing waves,
With sinewy arm the dashing current braves" —

but the ambitions and strifes and competitions which are engendered where much attention is given to these performances, and the few select persons into whose hands their execution is entrusted, take them out of the realm of games and pastimes and place them in the category of scientific accomplishments. Like most other modern matters, the question of muscular developement has come to a monetary basis. There are the professional athletes and experts who get the money by giving the exhibitions and the multitude who pay the money for seeing them. Every phase of physical exercise has its national representative; and the names of highly developed boxers, wrestlers, skaters, rowers and walkers are more familiar to Americans than the statesmen of the republic; and it is more than likely that a larger number of persons could tell the states which are the home of John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan with greater readiness than they could those wherein Senator Hoar and Senator Cullom reside.

These facts merely show that these attainments instead of being distributed as they once were, are being concentrated. In this regard, civilized society is being divided into two classes—those who have a high muscular developement and those who are destitute of any; and the latter class, a lean, soft, flabby assortment of human beings are much the more numerous. It is not necessary to go back to the early days of the republic to find a decided contrast to this state of things. Forty years ago the people at large were fitted to be pioneers either in a new cause or in a new country. Modern discoveries, scientific research, inventive genius, the application of steam, with other causes, and the thousand and one collateral results of this intellectual agitation have revolutionized and reconstructed human society, and in the grand round-up the boys seem to be left out in the cold; their irrepressible natures have no adequate chance for vent, their exuberant energy finds no opportunity to spend itself and fear may properly be entertained that another generation will see the period of youth practically abolished; will see childhood succeeded by an immature maturity which in time will be followed by a premature old age.

Incorrigable figures show that only three persons in a million commit suicide in Mexico annually. No further evidence is needed to show that the Mexican people are an unhappy race and in desperate need of the elevating influences of civilization.

"In a Kansas town an enterprising wet goods merchant is coining money by selling Jeffersonian Simplicity by the bottle." and the purchaser doubtless stands on that other plank of the democratic platform—Jacksonian economy—by getting trusted for the aforesaid simplicity.

A correspondent wants to know the origin of the name of the postmaster general. It is difficult to tell, but it is found in this stanza, written by Cowper more than a hundred years ago:

The dying thief rejoiced to see
That fountain in his day;
O, may I there though Vilas be
Wash all my sins away.

RIOTOUS WORKMEN IN ENGLAND.

Chamberlain's Men Resisting a Twenty Per Cent. Reduction.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The men employed in Nettleford's screw works at Smethwick, near Birmingham, struck work Friday afternoon and smashed the windows of the works and adjacent buildings. Having inflicted all the damage possible at Smethwick they started for Birmingham, marching in a body and smashing windows and destroying other property on their way. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, president of the local government board, is a partner with Nettleford.

The police dispersed the mob before it reached Birmingham, but not before the demonstration had assumed the proportions of a riot. A renewal of the rioting is feared. The strike was in resistance of a reduction by Nettleford of 20 per cent. in the wages paid. Mr. Chamberlain has donated £100 to the unemployed workmen of Birmingham.

Will Advance the Price of Coal.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company, acting for the shippers of bituminous coal over its lines; the Beech Creek Railroad company, on behalf of it shippers, and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, representing the operators of the Cumberland region, have issued orders to the different interests represented by them not to make any further contracts for coal until the first week in March. The reason for this is that the soft coal combination just formed has agreed to advance the price of bituminous coal 30 cents per ton after the pool has been put into active operation.

From the Coke Regions.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 27.—A report reached this place at noon Friday that all the striking coke drawers and miners between Everson and Broadford have resumed work pending a conference between a delegation of coke workers and the H. C. Frick company with a view of settling the trouble. Work was resumed at Leisenring, the superintendent having complied with the demands of the strikers and removed the "blacklegs" from the works. All the coke works in this region are in operation except at Mahoning, where they will resume soon.

Will Try Co-Operation.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27.—Friday Mr. J. K. Cummins, proprietor of the St. Louis Glass-works, northwest corner of Broadway and Monroe street, North St. Louis, filed articles for the incorporation of his works as a co-operative body. Mr. Cummings says that he believes this is the only true solution of the labor problem and one that will prevent a clash between labor and capital by giving laborers an equal share in enterprises which they sustain. This is the first instance of the kind on record in the west where a capitalist has voluntarily admitted all of his employes as partners in his business.

MURDER MOST ATROCIOUS.

A WOMAN ENTICED FROM INDIANA TO MISSOURI,

And Then Foully Murdered by Her Bigamist Husband—Her Body Stripped of Clothing and Thrown into a Sink-Hole—The Miscreant in Jail.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 27.—This community was thrown into a perfect whirlpool of excitement Thursday by the report of the finding of the body of Mrs. George E. Graham, whose mysterious disappearance has been the theme of much speculation for several weeks here, in St. Louis and near Fort Wayne, her home. The preliminary examination of George E. Graham on the charge of bigamy took place here the 10th inst. He was committed to jail in default of bail. He was at the time strongly suspected of having murdered his first wife, and Detective Ed C. Davis has been working up the case since. He traced her as having accompanied Graham and her two little boys to North Springfield. There they left the children at Fay's restaurant and proceeded together on the train as though going to the Malloy farm, four miles southwest of the city, where he lived. This was the last heard of the women.

There is a sink-hole and cavern about a quarter of a mile from the Malloy house, and a few yards from the road. The detective determined to explore this place. Thursday morning Mr. John Potter, a prominent business man of Brookline, accompanied by about a dozen neighbors, without waiting for the detective, procured a windless and went to the cave, which is a perpendicular hole about large enough around to admit a man's body, extending down thirty feet, and widens out into a chamber about 30x40 feet. One of the men, a miner, was let down with a lantern, and on reaching the bottom by its light beheld a ghastly sight. There was lying on the ground the corpse of a woman entirely nude, with a bullet-hole in the breast. The hand, one foot and part of the head were decomposed. By her side lay a bundle of clothing, consisting of a light summer-silk dress, cloak, etc., with a comb, pins and other feminine articles of apparel. The clothing answers the description of the garments worn by Mrs Graham at the time of her disappearance. The body was brought to the surface, and upon being exposed to the air the face crumbled so as to be beyond recognition.

Messengers were immediately dispatched to this city. On receiving the news Sheriff Donnell went to the jail to remove Graham to a more secure cell as a precaution against possible mob violence. Without saying whether she was dead or alive, the sheriff remarked: "Graham, they have found your wife." The prisoner's head dropped and his whole frame quivered with illy suppressed agitation. He asked: "Is there much excitement outside?" The sheriff replied in the affirmative, whereupon Graham said, "Well, I can not get justice in this town."

The various circumstances connected with the affair have been linked together by many speculating minds, and a theory construed about as follows: Graham, having married Mrs. Malloy's foster-daughter while his first wife still lived, desired both to obtain the children, and to rid himself of his first wife and the stigma of bigamy. He went to Indiana, where she lived with her sister, with his head full of diabolical schemes, in which the sink-hole by the roadside cut a prominent figure. He deceived her by some means, and she consented to accompany him back here. On arriving at Springfield he left the children and proceeded with his wife to Dorchester station, after which they got off and proceeded to the place which the misguided woman doubtless believed was her future home. On passing the sink-hole he enacted the crime which came to light Thursday, stripping the clothes from the body for fear it should not fall to the bottom. There he believed all traces of the crime would be buried forever, and during his examination for bigamy he laughed at questions the lawyers asked that would lead to the solution of the mystery as to the ill-fated woman's whereabouts.

The prominence of George E. Graham and his association with Mrs. Emma Malloy, the famous female preacher and temperance lecturess, lends additional importance to the case. A few years ago Mrs. Malloy and Mr. Graham published a temperance paper at Washington, Kan., called Morning and Day of Reform. Both of them are intelligent and fluent speakers. On many occasions Mrs. Malloy has electrified audiences and enthused temperance people in the cause of prohibition. A few weeks before Graham's arrest for bigamy he was arrested on the charge of forgery, but the case was dismissed on Mrs. Malloy paying for him the money involved in the crime. Soon after this she went to Illinois, and when last heard from was delivering temperance lectures at Elgin, having first conducted meetings at Peoria. It is believed by those who conversed with wife No. 2 Thursday that she was altogether ignorant of the crime of her husband, and, of course, innocent of complicity.

SALE OF MEGIBBON'S STABLE.

Fine Lot of Race Horses Sold at High Prices.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The sale of the entire stable of race-horses owned by Hon. T. J. Megibbon took place Friday at Madison Square garden and attracted the largest assemblage of turfmen seen at any eastern sale for years. Seventeen horses were sold, bringing $14,930, an average of $879.

Among those which brought high prices were the following: Orlando, a brown gelding, 4 years old, $1,400. Vallisea, br. m., 5 years old, $1,700; Rockwell, ch. c., 3 years old, $575; Winona, ch. f., 3 years old, $1,250; Ordway, ch. c., 2 years old, $1,300; Triple Cross, b. c., 2 years old, $1,200; Courtland, b. c., 2 years old, $1,275; Eldora, b. f., 2 years old, $950; Miss Charmer, ch. f., 2 years old, $1,500.

Will Pay 45 Cents on the Dollar.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 27.—A schedule of the assets and liabilities of the defunct Ritzinger bank was finished Thursday. Assets, $267,827.74; liabilities, $455,-868.58. There were 1,400 depositors, and the assignee says he thinks he can pay 45 cents on the dollar. The live stock on Ritzinger's farm will be sold on March 10.

What They Earn a Week.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 27.—Enough hands have returned to work in the Amoskeag mill to run 1,700 of the 5,250 looms. A reporter who averaged the wages under the new schedule, taking weave-rooms at random, found that 122 four-loom weavers made from $8 to $10, and sixteen three-loom weavers from $7 to $7.50 per week.

Killed a Well-Known Thief.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Early Friday morning while John, alias "Nut" Brown, a well-known thief, was trying to enter the grocery store, 427 West Seventeenth street, he was shot by Henry Prange, a clerk in the store. Brown escaped, but his dead body was later found in a Sixteenth street yard. He had been shot in the breast.

SMALL TALK AT CHICAGO.

REVIVALIST SAM SMALL LAYS ABOUT HIM RIGHT LUSTILY.

No Dancer Need Apply at Heaven's Gate—Theatrical Red Fire Only Hell Fire—The Lust of Wealth—A Slap at the Agnostic—Religion and Politics.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—At the Chicago Avenue church Mr. Small preached Friday evening. He began with a warning against the struggle for money and the danger of making a God of gold. "There are no pockets in shrouds," the speaker said abruptly, and then continued, "and you can only carry your own miserable self into eternity."

He did not blame those who sought to accumulate if they did not lose sight of the fact that God was the great drive-wheel of the universe, and lose time to hear the simple gospel as preached in the land. In the fascinating pursuit of pleasure the beauty of the gospel was lost. To the sanctuary of God were preferred the gay whirl, the giddy scenes, the resplendent costumes, the entrancing music of the ball-room. "And I will say to you right here that a ball is a ball, no matter what handle you put to it, nor can you veneer it into respectability in the sight of God. No matter what benevolent scheme you try to put it into it is a violation of the will of God. If there is any logic to define the difference between your 'charity ball' and a dance in the low dives and slums you ought to trot it right out; there are professing Christians in Chicago to-night who are desperately in need of just such an argument. Charity ball! God save the mark. The sham is exposed in the very endeavor to defend it. They say: 'It's all right to give the dance to the low dances of the outcasts of society, but you mustn't touch our refined balls. We're going balling in the sweet name of charity.' I say there was not a person at the charity ball but went seeking pleasure. They could have spent their money for charity in easier way. Have some common pride about you! Either be one thing or the other; take your stand for Christianity, or else say you are not a Christian, but you are a dancer. God will have nothing to do with any who engage in dancing, but it will send everyone whirling down to hell together.

"And the theatres—those innocent places of amusement—you can not interfere with the innocent amusement of the people. What is the difference between the first-class and the low down theatre? It has a little more red fire—hell fire—that's all. The little cheap theatres are the spawn of the big ones, that's all. There are some things have got to be reformed from the top down. If you were afraid of a dam giving way, you would mend the dam and not try to dip up the water in the little springs and streams up the valley. If you want to break up the low theatres you must break up the big ones that daddy them and mammy them. I'm going to continue to talk against these things, and when you don't like it send me a notice, for I've got other engagements open.

"When I hear a man in any profession say he can't be this or that and be a Christian, I know he means to try and get along in a dishonest way. When I hear a lawyer ridicule Christ I lose all respect for him. I would not trust him to get a bobtailed calf out of the pound. Things have got to such a pass that the schoolboy thinks he can not fit himself for any work in the world until he declares himself an atheist, and a man has to become an agnostic before he can proscribe castor-oil for a sick baby. And the politics of the day is full of knavery. You hear them talking of reform and retrenchment, but the reform is to get in and get the other fellows out. About all the retrenchment they have is to knock out the spigot and turn the barrel over. I shall hail the day, if I ever live to see it, when there is a God-and-morality party in fact as well as in fiction. I am opposed to bringing politics into religion, but a little religion in politics would be a good thing.

After a eulogy of the press he concluded with: "I will preach the word and I will be heard."

Sam Jones will begin his campaign against Satan in this city on Monday.

MR. VAN DORN'S DEAF-MUTE WIFE

Meets Her Husband in Court—Her Father Retains Custody of Her.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Millionaire Pancoast's deaf and dumb daughter, Minnie, was brought before Judge Barrett, Friday, on habeas corpus proceedings by Mr. Van Dorn, the athlete, who claims that she is his wife. Judge Barrett tried to learn from the lady whether she desired to speak to Van Dorn. He wrote the inquiry on a slip of paper. Miss Pancoast wrote: "I do not." The judge then wrote: "Do I understand that you do not desire to have any communication with Mr. Van Dorn?" She seemed confused, and hesitated a few moments before writing: "I do not understand."

Judge Barrett then said it was evident she did not wish to communicate with Van Dorn. He could make no order at present except to continue the habeas corpus, but permit the father to retain custody of the girl until a commission had reported upon her mental condition. Van Dorn's counsel made no objection. The deaf mutes of the city are much interested in the case, and insist that Miss Pancoast is not insane and that she is being ill-treated by her father.

Iowa Legislature.

DES MOINES, Feb. 27.—A resolution of inquiry whether the state debt is within lawful limits was placed on file in the senate Friday, and resolutions regarding the death of Judge Mitchell passed. The bill to restrict the time for argument of counsel in court was passed. The court is given power to restrict in all cases except where the death penalty attaches. A bill to prohibit traffic in cholera-infected hogs was passed. There was filibustering in the house over the bill to have committees of the senate and house select a soldiers' home location, but it was made a special order. A bill providing for the arbitration of questions between labor and capital was passed, as also mortuary resolutions on the death of Judge Mitchell.

Symptoms of Reviving Business.

EASTON, Pa., March 1.—The wages of the 400 employes of the Warren Foundry and Machine company, Phillipsburg, N. J., will be advanced 15 per cent. March 15. Orders have been issued to prepare the Glendon Iron company's No. 4 furnace in South Easton for blast. The stack has been idle several years.

The Bethlehem Iron company's No. 6 furnace will be put in blast in a few days. This company now has nearly all its furnaces in operation.

The Champion Chess Players.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—Steinitz and Zuckertort played the first game of the series to be played here for the championship Friday. The game was a draw on the twenty-third move. The next game comes off Monday.

THE VIALS OF A WEST VIRGINIA REPRESENTATIVE'S WRATH.

Pan-Electric Matter Gives Rise to a Hot Speech—The World Editor Invited to Stand Up and Make His Charges—Mitchell on the Chinese—Capital Items.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 27.—Gibson of West Virginia made a "slashing" speech in the house Friday in opposition to the resolution introduced in the house by Morrison to investigate the Pan-Electric scandal. The resolution provides for a select committee armed with all necessary authority to inquire into the charges that Attorney General Garland has been illegally influenced in the matter of the suit to test the validity of the Bell telephone patents, the attorney general being the owner of some stock in the opposing company, the Pan-Electric.

Gibson said he was unwilling to sit in the house and see that body drifting into an investigation that could bring no respect to it, or confidence to the country, or any good to a human being. There had never yet been made a charge against any official that would justify the proposed investigation. "But a member of this house—I refer to the gentleman from New York, Mr. Pulitzer, himself an editor of a paper—did not see fit in his official capacity to attack these gentlemen in the open, honest and manly way which a representative should have done, but undertook to retreat behind the irresponsible columns of his newspaper for the purpose of creating a scandal, for what motives I am not here to state."

Holman called the gentleman's attention to the fact that the member from New York was not present.

Gibson said he could not help that; the gentleman ought to be present. He (Gibson) remembered that gentlemen who had lived a long life of good reputation and by their integrity and capacity had won the confidence of the country, had been arraigned by an irresponsible newspaper, and that a Democratic majority was rushing before the hue and cry to do that which must only do gentlemen injustice. He said there was not a charge embraced in this resolution. It was not charged that the attorney general or secretary of the interior had given corrupt decisions, or that one dollar of money had been illegally expended. All that had been done in the telephone matter had been to refer it to the courts. Let the court decide whether it had been properly referred or not. He had stood on the floor of the house and heard a member boast that he held thousands of dollars of railroad stock and would combine with railroads to clog up the courts with business, but no outcry was made against it. "I see all around me men who hold railroad stock and national bank stock voting with that stock in their pockets and no outcry is made against it. The distinguished gentleman from New York [Hewitt], himself a large manufacturer, is at work and has been at work for years to raise the tariff so that his manufactures may be more profitable. [Laughter.] There is a gentleman from South Carolina who is on the committee on coinage who is a member of a national bank. If I am not misinformed, a late president of the senate himself was counsel for one of these telephone companies. Who cried out against it! If I am correctly informed the present president of the senate is a national bank stockholder."

Gibson said it was not the manner in which the stock was received, but whether action was influenced by the stock. He was not standing as the champion of this administration. While he acknowledged the honesty and cleanliness of the administration as equal to that of any we had ever had, he had very little regard for its politics. (Laughter and applause.) He was here to protest against the Democratic majority going into an investigation that could reflect no credit on it, or do it any good.

"If the attorney general is to be assailed, let him be assailed with the certainty you would assail a chicken-thief. Let him be assailed with the manliness which the character of his reputation deserves, but let no man come here behind the irresponsible columns of a newspaper to arraign the character of an honorable gentleman and ask us to stand by him." He characterized the investigation of the newspapers as a "magnificent field of investigation;" but thought the result would be "absolutely ridiculous."

Morrison, as a friend of the officer supposed to be the most affected—if anybody was to be affected by the investigation—and having unlimited confidence in his honor and personal and official integrity, hoped that the resolution would pass and the investigation go on. Breckenridge and Rogers of Arkansas took the same ground.

Reed of Maine appreciated the natural feeling of solemnity which had fallen on the Democratic party, in the midst of a career of great and well administered purity, which had for its motto the turning out of rascals, to be stopped and obliged to consider whether by some accident, instead of being turned out, they had not "got in". He tendered to the Democratic party assurances of respectful consideration for their situation. He defended the resolution.

Morrison said the Democrats proposed to investigate charges against their own people as well as against Republicans and if found guilty, the Democrats would not as gentlemen on the other side had done, attempt to shield their party associates.

THE DAY IN CONGRESS.

Summary of the Proceedings in the Capitol Building.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 27.—Nothing except some unimportant routine business was transacted in the senate Friday before Mitchell of Oregon got the floor and proceeded to make a speech in advocacy of his bill to abrogate all treaties with China that permit Chinese immigration. He argued that Chinese immigration was fraught with such danger to the country from every point of view that the ordinary amenities between nations must be ignored in the treatment of this question. The education bill came up at the conclusion of Mitchell's speech, and Allison offered an amendment requiring the payment of the fund to states where white and colored schools are maintained so that each class of schools shall have its proportion decided by the ratio of illiteracy between white and colored children. Blair and Miller of New York opposed the amendment, arguing that it would defeat the object of the bill. At the conclusion of the debate the senate went into executive session and afterward adjourned until Monday.

Morrison introduced in the house a resolution providing for the investigation of all matters relating to the connection of officials of the United States with the Bell and Pan-Electric Telephone companies. The resolution covers the whole ground and was offered as a substitute for Hanback's and Pulitzer's resolutions on the same subject. It was passed after an exciting debate in which Gibson of West Virginia made a savage attack on Pulitzer, who he said had slandered honest public officials through the columns of an "irresponsible newspaper," instead of making charges in the house, which was the manly course. Dockery offered a resolution providing for an inquiry as to whether legislation is necessary to prevent a telegraphic monopoly. The immediate deficiency bill was reported, and the house went into committee on private claims the committee then rose and passed several claim bills. The usual Friday night session was held to consider pension bills and twenty-eight were passed when the house adjourned.

REQUIRES HEROIC TREATMENT.

The Oregon Senator Says the Chinese Must Be Banished.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 27.—When Mitchell of Oregon, got the floor in the senate, Friday, to speak on his anti-Chinese bill, he said that desperate cases in medicine and surgery required heroic treatment. When a malignant cancer was making startling headway toward the vitals, temporizing and palliatives would have to give away to the knife, and though the emergency might compel the sacrifice of human blood in order to save human life, the devouring sore would have to be cut from the body. So was it with the body politic. When assailed by an extraordinary evil, when menaced by a rapidly advancing vice, perilling the best interests and most cherished institutions of our country, the time for temporizing had passed, and the amenities usually observed toward foreign powers would have to give way to such heroic and aggressive measures as were necessary on the principle of self-preservation. An evil of the character referred to was paralyzing the rights of the laboring classes among us. The people of the whole Pacific coast were suffering from the presence of large numbers of an unclean, non-assimilating and pagan race. Impending over them, and gradually extending eastward like a cloud of wrath, the evil imperiled labor, property, peace, even life itself. To eradicate the scourge, heroic treatment would be necessary. A more decided and more aggressive governmental step than had yet been taken would be necessary.

Afraid of a Telegraph Monopoly.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 27.—A resolution introduced in the house Friday by Dockery, of Missouri, provides: "That the committee on postoffices and post roads is hereby empowered to ascertain whether additional legislation is necessary to prevent the monopoly of telegraphic facilities to secure to the southern, western and Pacific states the benefits of competition between telegraph companies, and to protect the people of the United States against unreasonable charges for telegraphic services. Said committee is hereby authorized to send for an examiner, persons and papers, to administer oaths to witnesses and to employ a stenographer, and the expenses for such investigation, not to exceed a total of $1,500, is hereby authorized to be paid out of the contingent fund of the house."

Democrats Getting Ready to Recoup.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 27.—The Democratic members of the house were taken unawares Thursday in the debate on the pension appropriation bill, but they are now preparing facts and data wherewith to recoup upon their political adversaries next Wednesday, when consideration of the bill is to be resumed. They will undertake to show that the administration of the pension bureau under Commissioner Dudley was corrupt and reprehensible in the extreme, while the administration of Commissioner Black has been distinguished by integrity and fidelity, as well to the pensioners as to the government; that Gen. Black has instituted many needed reforms, removed dishonest and inefficient employes, and largely facilitated the transaction of business.

Was the Press Subsidized?

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 27.—The Pan-Electric investigation resolution adopted Friday by the house has the following paragraph:

"And the said committee is further authorized and directed to ascertain and report whether either of the telephone companies herein mentioned [the Bell and Pan-Electric], or their officers, agents and employes have in manner improperly influenced or attempted to influence officials or official action by or through the public press, and, if so, when, by whom and in what manner such influence was exerted or attempted to be exerted, and what newspaper or newspapers were so used or attempted to be used by them."

He Will Get Over It.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 27.—There is no change in the condition of Abbott Lawrence, the victim of George a Wardner's homicidal tendencies. Lawrence passed an easy and comfortable night Thursday, and Friday was resting quietly. With the exception of immediate relations no visitors are allowed in the room. The attending physicians think the wounded man's recovery only a matter of time.

Confirmations.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 27.—The senate in executive session, Friday, confirmed the nomination of William Wayland Sutton, of Ohio, to be assistant United States treasurer at Cincinnati, Ohio. On the 23d inst. the senate confirmed the following nominations: Henry W. Young to be receiver of public moneys at Independence, Kan.; Benjamin H. Green, surveyor general of Montana.

Exports and Imports.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 27.—The total value of merchandise and gold and silver exported from the United States during January past, amounted to $37,950,862, against $80,532,584 in January 1885. The total value of imports for January last was $47,398,409, against $42,921,171 in January, 1885.

A QUESTION OF SHORT TIME.

Unpleasantness Between Railways Out of Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Friday representatives of the Rock Island, the Burlington and Illinois Central met and settled on the following announcement:

"The Chicago, St. Louis and Missouri River association lines have decided that their interests are not sufficiently affected to justify a reduction of their rates between Chicago and Council Bluffs or any other association points. The rates have been revised to meet competition." The St. Paul folks say that the Rock Island wanted them to bind themselves not to run to St. Paul on shorter time than sixteen hours. The demands for fast travel are so numerous that they could not bind themselves to do that. The fight which has now been inaugurated is between the great granger roads with the Burlington, the Rock Island and the Illinois Central on one side, and the St. Paul and Northwestern on the other. It is difficult to tell where it will end.

New Railway Incorporated.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Feb. 27.—The secretary of state, Friday, licensed the incorporation of the Minnesota & Northwestern Railroad company, capital, $5,000,000; to build a line from Chicago to East Dubuque; incorporators, Robert D. McFadden, William A. Gardner, Henry A. Gardner, John I. Thompson, and Adolphus F. Schiffman.

An Indiana Murderer Hung.

RENSSELAER, Ind., Feb. 27.—Welbar Wartena was hanged at 11:57 Friday for the murder of John Dreger, his neighbor Oct. 8, 1884, by striking him over the head with a gun, then throwing the body in the river weighted down with iron. The crime was committed to get possession of Dreger's property. The murderer rested well Thursday night, but has eaten nothing for a week. Thirty persons witnessed the execution.

Cost of Prohibition.

DES MOINES, Feb. 27.—A tabulated statement of the court costs in cases brought for the enforcement of the prohibitory law in Des Moines, shows an aggregate of $20,401 during the past nineteen months. Fines have been collected amounting to $135,000. The loss of city license for the time under the operations of the same laws amounts to $95,000, making a net loss to the taxpayers of over $150,000.

An End to Bone Scraping

Edward Shephord, of Harrisburg, Ill. says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents per box by F. Sherer & Co.

Four score years and ten have not seen the equal of Ely's Cream Balm as a remedy for Catarrh, Colds in the Head, and Hay Fever. It works like magic, giving relief at once, and permanent benefit. A thorough treatment cures the worst cases. Apply into the nostrils.

We have used Ely's Cream Balm about three years, and have recommended its use in more than a hundred Special Cases of Catarrh. The unanimous answer to our inquiries is, "It's the best remedy that I have ever used." Our experience is, that where parties continued its use, it never fails to cure.—J. H. Montgomery & Co., Druggists, Decorah, Iowa.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES IN SCROFULOUS AND CONSUMPTIVE CASES.

Dr. C. C. Lockwood, New York, says "I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious."

CONDENSED NEWS.

Edwin R. Clarke, of Coldwater, Mich., will build and present to that city a $15,000 structure for the public library.

The grand jury at New York adjourned without indicting any aldermen for bribery in connection with the Broadway railway franchise.

For the recent assault on Mr. Dickson, United States attorney at Salt Lake, Angus and Frank J. Cannon have been held in $1,000 each.

The Houston savings bank, in Texas, which held deposits of $250,000, closed its doors on account of a run, and a receiver was appointed.

The governor of Wisconsin has appointed to the vacant judgeship of Grant county, George B. Carter, who was a chaplain in the Iron brigade.

Four glandered horses on farms near Rochester, Ills., were killed by the assistant state veterinarian, and thirteen others were ordered quarantined.

T. C. Dutro, of St. Louis, who went to Leadville to invest in the Colonel Sellers mine, fell into a dark slope and received such injuries as to cause his death.

Small-pox in a virulent form has appeared in a large hospital at Ottawa, Ont., controlled by the Sisters of Charity. Four of the cases are regarded as hopeless.

President Cleveland has been asked by leading Illinoisans to appoint as recorder of deeds at Washington, in place of Fred Douglass, a Democratic negro from Springfield named Charles Nelson.

Judge Jackson, of the federal court at Charleston, W. Va., in sentencing George J. Williams for pension frauds, embodied an order for his perpetual banishment from the state, to take effect sixty days after his release from jail.

Edison, the electrician, in an interview regarding the telephone decision by the Indiana supreme court, expressed the belief that the law would be pronounced unconstitutional, and declared the decision fatal to patents and progress.

At a Lutheran church in Detroit, Friday, the twelfth male child of a German family named Detloff was named after President Cleveland, who was represented by Congressman Maybury. The infant was presented with a $10 gold piece.

Fire destroyed the Vallambrosia roller rink and one or two other buildings at Troy, N. Y., and caused the injury of several people one of whom had his skull fractured in jumping from a window. Loss, $45,000. At Baltimore losses were caused as follows: G. S. Howser, hat manufacturer, $7,000; fully insured. Charles Weller & Sons, wholesale jeans $50,000; insurance $40,000; Johnson Bros., owners of the buildings, $20,000; fully insured.

A letter from Chicago, signed John Bradley, reached John C. Eno, the New York bank fugitive, at Quebec, begging him to send $100 or $200 to a victim of his dishonesty, who was suffering for food. As the writer referred to District Attorney Tuthill, Eno inclosed the letter to that official, with the remark that, as the bank with which he was connected in New York never failed to discharge every obligation to its stockholders, the applicant must be an impostor.

McCormick's Reaper Works.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—The McCormick reaper works will be opened Monday. Their president is said to have determined upon this action several days ago, but the announcement was not made until Friday morning. It followed hard upon the heels of a conference between Mr. McCormick, his uncle, Leander J., and Mr. Butler for the works and a delegation of nine ex-employes. The following paper had been circulated and is said to have been signed by large numbers of employes: "We, the undersigned employes of the McCormick Harvesting Machine company, indorse the position taken by the officers of the company and acknowledge their right to hire and discharge whom they please; we also propose to defend our right to dispose of our labor as we see fit, and are ready to return to work." It is claimed that 1,000 of the hands are anxious to go to work, and blame the trouble on outsiders.

Tried to Beat an Insurance Company.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Anthony Accota and Mrs. Hanley were Friday found guilty of conspiracy to defraud the Fidelity Mutual Life association of Philadelphia out of $10,000. In January Accota, residing in Catskill, took out policies in the Fidelity, the United States Mutual Accident association of New York, and the New England Accident association of Boston. Two weeks after he was reported to have been drowned.

The Boys in Blue and Gray.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 27.—The encampment of the Army of the Tennessee met here. Delegates were elected to the national encampment which meets in San Francisco next August and were instructed to vote for Nashville as the next place of meeting for that body. During the day large numbers of ex-Confederates called and the boys in blue and gray fraternized generally.

A Word to Workers.

If your avocations are mentally or physically laborious, if they subject you to exposure in inclement weather, if they confine you to the desk, and are of a nature to involve wear and tear of brain, and nervous strain, you may occasionally require some renovating tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the article for you, it stimulates the failing energies, invigorates the body and cheers the mind. It enables the system to throw off the debilitating effects of undue fatigue, gives renewed vigor to the organs of digestion, arouses the liver when inactive, which it very often is with people whose pursuits are sedentary, renews the jaded appetite, and encourages healthful repose. Its ingredients are safe, and its credentials, which consist in the hearty endorsement of persons of every class of society, are most convincing. Admirably is it adapted to the medical wants of workers.

MISCELLANEOUS

OLD RESIDENTS OF WISCONSIN.

The old residents who first settled Wisconsin and have watched it grow from a thinly populated territory into one of the most prosperous and progressive States of the Union are fast passing away. Every few days are printed accounts of the death of some village patriarch, whose tales of fights with the Indians and of hardships endured and overcome in earlier days have seemed to the rising generation like chapters in ancient history. To those who still remain all honor is due. They will not be with us long, but while they yet tarry their experience and advice should be heeded. Samuel Barstow, of Lancaster, Wis., is one of these old residents and is well known, not only in the State, but beyond its borders as well. In recounting some of his experiences recently he said:

"I have suffered more or less from rheumatism and general debility for a number of years. For the last year the trouble has constantly increased and for a month I could not dress myself or get up from my chair without help. From my head to my feet every cord and muscle was stiff and sore. During this time I used various remedies, but all to no purpose, and continued to get worse. My attention was called to Athlophoros. I procured a bottle and on the 22d of January, 1884, began to use it. I took five doses and then slept easily until eight o'clock in the morning; I then got up and dressed myself and walked out without a cane. I was astonished at the result and could hardly realize that the medicine had produced such an effect. I am getting to be an old man—I am now seventy-two years old—and I don't suppose that it will make me a young man, but it will help the lamp of life to burn down calmly."

Mrs. R. F. Bowers, of Racine, Wis., is well known in that city as one of the old residents, she having lived there thirty-seven years. Her present address is 59 State street. She has this to say:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism for the last three years. I did not suffer as much pain as some do with the same complaint, my difficulty being principally stiffness of the joints. The trouble was mostly in my knee joints, and it was with much difficulty that I could bend them, especially in going up and down stairs. During the time I was troubled in this way, I tried many medicines without any good effects. Athlophoros came to my notice, and being anxious to get some relief I thought I would try it. After using it for a short time I was able to bend my knees easily and could go up or down stairs.

Mrs. T. B. Neff, of Calamine, Wis., who has herself been benefited by taking Athlophoros for her rheumatism, tells an interesting story of the improvement wrought in her brother-in-law, Mr. John W. Neff, of Calamine, an old gentleman of seventy-five years. She says:

"When he got the first bottle of Athlophoros, which I sent for for him, he was so badly off with rheumatism and had been for nearly a year that he could not step without two crutches. It took two or three men to help him out of a wagon or sleigh, and he could not dress or undress himself alone. He had paid out a great many dollars for remedies. He took eighteen bottles of Athlophoros, and now he can walk three-quarters of a mile with just one cane, and can hoe in the garden and chop wood."

If you cannot get Athlophoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed. Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York.

Farmers' Mills!

The Mills have been fitted up in good order for all kinds of

The proprietors keep on hand and will deliver

Buckwheat Flour
Graham Flour,
Rye Flour
Corn Meal, Bolted and Granulated.
Corn, Oats,
Ground Feed,
Baled Hay,
Bran and
Linseed Meal,

Of the Best Quality.

We desire to build up a home trade in

Buckwheat Flour,

And we guarantee that all Buckwheat Flour sold from these mills shall be made from Pure Buckwheat, and shall contain no other ingredient.

Our Graham Flour

is made from thoroughly cleaned, Choice, White Winter Wheat. Graham Flour takes its name from Sylvester Graham, the author of a noted treatise on "Bread and Bread Making." It is conceded that bread made from unbolted or Graham Flour, is more healthful and nutritious than fine, white bolted flour, for the reason that it contains more of the gluten, from which the flesh, bone, brain and tissue of the body is built up and sustained.

The whitest and most beautiful bread found upon the tables of the critical American, contains less of the element of

STRENGTH, HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Than the dark colored rye bread in Germany, or the heavy loaves found in the knapsacks of the Russian soldier. Graham bread made from good, clean wheat is very excellent and healthful food. We propose to make and sell this kind of flour.

Corn Meal.

as a staple article of diet in the Eastern and Southern States, and should be more generally used here. Is there a Yankee on the face of the earth, who has wandered so far from the hills of New England, that he has forgotten the baked pork and beans, the rye and the Indian meal bread, or the baked Indian pudding with which his heart and stomach were gladdened during the days of his boyhood. Hoe cake, Johnny cake, mush and milk, corn meal gems, and Indian meal puddings, with pork and bacon, were main articles of diet for the sturdy men and women who subdued and built up the older States of the Union. We offer to the trade, and families, both the bolted and granulated Corn Meal.

Especial attention is called to our

Minnesota Linseed Meal

It is excellent for dairy stock, and horses when fed with other grain.

ORDERS FOR GOODS may be left at the store of E. Hall, Norcross Block, or at the mill. All grists ground on the same day as received, as desired.

ECZEMA

And Every Species of Itching And Burning Diseases Cured by Cuticura.

ECZEMA, or Salt Rheum, with its agonizing itching and burning, instantly relieved by a warm bath with Cuticura Soap, and a single application of Cuticura the great skin cure. This repeated daily with two or three doses of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, to keep the blood cool, the perspiration pure and unirritating, the bowels open, the liver and kidneys active, will speedily cure Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Psoriasis, Lichen, Pruritus, Scald Head, Dandruff, and every species of Itching, Scaly and Pimply Humors of the Scalp and Skin, when the best physicians and all known remedies fail.

WILL McDONALD, 2542 Dearborn St. Chicago gratefully acknowledges a cure of Eczema, or Salt Rheum, on head, neck, face, arms and legs, for seventeen years; not able to walk except on hands and knees for eight years; tried hundreds of remedies; doctors pronounced his case hopeless; permanently cured by Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura soap (the great skin cure) externally.

CHAS. HOUGHTON, ESQ., lawyer, 28 State street, Boston, reports a case of Eczema under his observation for ten years, which covered the patient's body and limbs, and to which all known methods of treatment had been applied without benefit, which was completely cured solely by the Cuticura Remedies leaving a clean and healthy skin.

MR. JOHN THIEL, Wilkesbarre, Pa., writes: "I have suffered from Salt Rheum for over eight years, at times so bad that I could not attend to my business for weeks at a time. Three boxes of Cuticura and four bottles Resolvent have entirely cured me of this dreadful disease.

MRS. ISAAC PHELPS, Ravenna, O., writes: "For the last year I have had a species of itching, scaly and pimply humors on my face to which I have applied a great many methods of treatment without success, and which was speedily and entirely cured by Cuticura."

PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBE THEM.—I have nothing but the highest praise for the result obtained from your CUTICURA REMEDIES, o which I have sold more than of all others of the kind.

WHO WAS HER NEIGHBOR?

When Mrs. Beardsley went to Dalton to live, she knew very few people. She had lived in a city all her life, been educated well, and came of a cultivated and rather proud family; but she was not proud in their fashion. She had always earned her own living in one way or another, chiefly by writing for magazines and newspapers. Whatever the outside world may think, this is not a lucrative business, and our friend had laid up nothing; and after a while she married a poor man and came to Dalton, a flourishing country town to live. They went to housekeeping in an old house, small and inconvenient, but of pleasant outlook, and once settled begun to look about them.

"Oh, Fred! I do hope I shall have nice neighbors," said the little woman as they sat at breakfast one day.

"I don't know. Tina, how you'll like them; of course, they'll like you.

"That's very proper of you to say, sir," laughed Mrs. Beardsley, "but I am more apt to like people than they are to like me."

This was quiet true. Justina Beardsley was very honest, frank, unconventional and acute; she spoke her mind too freely to be always a comfortable friend. Human nature loves flattery, and she never flattered; however, our business is with her neighbors.

Up the street lived the Dean family. Mrs. Dean was a handsome, cool, calm sort of woman, with three daughters, all under 14. Her husband kept a country store and had made some money; her house was very fine with shining furniture, and Brussels carpets, and always strictly curtained, screened and blinded from sun and air. Mrs. Dean was a very good woman, she never failed to attend every meeting there was, and she always went to church, rain or shine, and took her children to Sunday-school with the same persistence. She was a woman who did her duty in these respects earnestly and conscientiously, and never could understand why everyone else was not equally faithful.

Now her new neighbor was not a strong woman, and her work was hard. It frequently happened to her to have a dreadful neuralgic headache on Sunday, and though she was accustomed in her youth to go to church as punctiliously as the minister himself, and had really overworked herself in the city mission Sunday schools, she frequently now spent the day of rest on her sofa, with throbbing pangs in her head, and a back aching in every fiber. Nor did she send Tommy, her little 5-year-old boy, to Sunday school; for she preferred to teach him at home.

"Have you been to see Beardsley's wife, my dear?" said Mr. Dean, one morning, about three weeks after the new neighbors made their appearance.

"No, not yet. I thought I should not hurry. I do not think she is a very good person to be intimate with. She does not send her boy to Sabbath school, and hardly ever goes to church. I should not wish to encourage such a person to visit us freely."

Mr. Dean said no more. His wife's chin was square, and her lips thin; he really respected her rather severe goodness. She called on the new comer, and was a little horrified to find what common furniture she had, and how the sun streamed in on the old three-ply carpet, and she went away leaving behind her a chill such as follows an iceberg. Mrs. Beardsley knew she was disappointed and why, for she was quick of discernment; and knowing inwardly that she really did try and wish above all things to be a Christian woman, she felt sad and sorry that her light did not shine better. Then it occurred to her that, after all, God knew about it, and knew she did not go to church, and did not like to be kept at home with neuralgia and exhaustion, so she left this new trouble to Him. Down the street lived Mrs. Roberts, a well-to-do mechanic's wife.

"I see Beardsley's folks have moved in," was her husband's comment.

"Yes, they have; but I shan't trouble them with my company. She's a city woman, and writes for the papers besides. She won't want to see common folks like me. Mrs. Dean will call on her, I presume to say, and the rich folks up town; but I know enough not to go where I am not wanted, and, moreover, I never did like stuck up folks."

"I don't know but what you'er just as good as she is, Mariar, and if you come to the money p'int on't, I could buy and sell Fred Beardsley over and ag'in."

"Well, I guess you could; but she's got her own clique, and I shan't trouble her. I believe in lettin' folks alone, if they feel too smart for your kind. I never did push in where I wa'n't wanted, and I am not going to begin now."

So Mrs. Roberts stayed away, strenuously held her parasol to the east if her new neighbor was that way, although the sun blazed toward the west, and passed by on the other side. Mrs. Beardsley comprehended the matter, and laughed softly; she would sometime undertake Mrs. Roberts, she thought, and convert her to her own theory of neighborhood; but that time had not come yet.

Next to Mrs. Dean lived Mrs. Morris. She was a pleasant, energetic, talkative, person; an indefatigable church-goer, and a benevolent soul; but she did not belong to the Blank church, and the Beardsleys did; she went to the Blanker house of workship, and did not care a cent about any other denomination. It did not afflict her much that Mrs. Beardsley was one of the inactive sisters, because she was a Blank; if she had been a Blanker, Mrs. Morris would have been as much troubled as Mrs. Dean was, about the new neighbor, though on a different principle.

As it was, she called on her after a while, but her time was so taken up with the Blanker church, her house was so filled and overrun with all the Blanker congregation, from the minister down to the sexton; she had so many weddings, and funerals, and societies to attend, that Mrs. Beardsley hardly saw her in her own house for the next year, though Mrs. Morris' call was promptly returned.

Next to Mrs. Roberts lived the Waters family, nice, kindly, plain young people, Mrs. Water's sister being the third in the family. The husband was a tinner, and it was in his shop where she was buying a teakettle that the new neighbor was introduced to them. They meant [illegible], they were members of the [illegible] to which the Beardsleys belo[ng]ed [and] lived only two houses away, but [they were] so shy. It seemed to be a sort of agony to them to speak before a stranger; th[ey] flushed and stammered, and looked a[bout for] the right one. At last, after a year['s] waiting, they came one evening but they never came again.

Up above her, for the street was on the [side of] a gentle declivity, Mrs. Beardsley had an[oth]er neighbor, a carpenter's wife, Mrs. Green. She, too, seemed to be shy at first, but was attracted after awhile by Justina's flowers and Tommy's merry face. She was childless herself, and her one passion was flowers, and after the ice was broken she came in often, sometimes with an apple for Tommy, sometimes with a rose to his mother, Mrs. Roberts had called Mrs. Beardsley proud and "stuck-up," but Mrs. Green did not find her so.

"She's real nice," was her unbiased verdict, as she walked home one night with the Waters family from prayer meeting. "I did expect she'd be a little airy, seein' who her folks was, but she isn't, not a mite. She's as pleasant as pie. I dunno when I've set so much by a new neighbor as I do by her. Mis Dean's a leetle too high in the instep for me; and Mis Morris she don't care for nobody without they're a Blanker; and you can't take no solid comfort with Mis Roberts, she's so partic'lar leest you should not think so much of her as you'd ought to. But, my! Mis Beardsley, she's just as easy an old shoe. I wish't I hadn't stayed away so long, but you know, Malviny, I am no hand to make acquaintance with folks. I don't know as I should ever ha' knowed you if John hadn't been my nephew." Mrs. Waters gave a little laugh, but she did not say anything; she did not remember much about her own call on the new neighbor but her own painful shyness.

There was still another neighbor on the street, old Miss Betsey Parker, the tailoress, who lived in a small brown house next but one to that which the Beardsleys occupied. She was a plain, uneducated woman, having plenty of common sense, and a cheerful nature; no especial talent, or brightness, or charm of aspect, but she was an honest and humble Christian. Mrs. Dean sent her sewing when she had it; and Mrs. Morris found it very handy to have a tailoress so close by when her two big boys tore their clothes, especially as Miss Betsey went to the Blanker church. Besides these small sources of income, she made shrouds from the Dalton factory, and coffin trimmings, the day of tailoress work having gone by; and she owned the little house she lived in, which was set about with cinnamon roses and lilacs, and had a garden devoted chiefly to corn, beans and squashes, though a great bunch of clove pinks and a cluster of red peonies adorned its border. She was the first neighbor whose acquaintance Mrs. Beardsley made. While that weary woman was putting down her parlor carpet, she looked up at the sound of a kind voice, and saw a slat sunbonnet peering round the edge of the door; deep in its gingham vault Miss Betsey's cheerful face smiled at her. "I thought mebbe I could help you some way. I live next but one, and if you want anything I've got, just send for it; matches or salt, or any extry hammer. I know how 'tis; folks always forget somethin'. Mercy sakes! let me git hold of that stretcher; Them poor little hands o' yourn aren't fit for such heavy work," and suiting the action to the word, she took Mrs. Beardsley's place, and the refractory carpet became docile at once, while poor Justina sat down on the floor, and felt like crying from mere relief. "There! I wish 'twas the first instead of the last. I live right up here in that small house with the leanto. and if you want a thing I've got to help ye, send right up. My name's Betsey Parker."

"Oh, thank you! I was so tired!" was the rather incoherent answer; but the very grateful look out of Mrs. Beardley's expressive eyes filled it out for Miss Betsey.

She had not stopped to consider her own position or her neighbor's, but came at once to see if she could help; and this was only a beginning; she brought many a fresh egg to tempt Justina's delicate appetite, though her poultry was only three bantam hens. And again and again when her neighbor had a headache she took Tommy home with her for the day, though she had sometimes to stay at home from church with him. She had no carriage like Mrs. Morris to give her neighbor a drive—as Mrs. Morris never did. She had no loaded fruit trees like Mrs. Dean, who kept her pears and peaches for her own and the minister's family, exclusively. But her black-cap raspberries were more than shared with Mrs. Waters as well as Mrs. Beardsley, and her currants were almost public property.

"I really haven't had enough for jell this year," she said apologetically to Mrs. Green, "and I do lot on jell, it's so good for the sick; but then, fresh currants is always refreshin' this hot weather, you know it's been master hot right along for a spell, and there aren't but a few has got as good currants as mine be."

At last Mrs. Beardsley fell ill of low fever; she was very lonely, for Fred had to be at his work, and the girl in the kitchen had her hands full with Tommy and the housework. The doctor's gig at the door notified the neighbors of the trouble, and after it had stopped their daily for a week, Mrs. Dean sent over her girl to inquire how Mrs. Beardsley was. Mrs. Morris met her husband in the street and asked him the same question. Mrs. Roberts was not concerned about the matter. "Those upper-crust folks keep sending in to ask, I see; I haven't never called there, so I am not wanted nor needed now as I know off."

But she did tell the doctor she was a good watcher, and would go if they could not get anybody else.

Mrs. Waters had a little baby, and could do nothing, yet she sent in a rose bud, the first from her own cherished bush, and Justina cried over it, she was so weak. Mrs. Green came over once or twice, and sent some custard, but she "wa'n't no use in sickness, so dreadful nervous," her husband said.

Miss Betsey was out of town at first, but as soon as she came back, not a day passed that she did not go over and cheer the sick with homely, earnest words of faith and hope and good will. She went into the kitchen and made beef tea, she came up stairs and shook up her hot pillows, replenished the fire, combed out the tangled hair with the gentlest fingers, and kept Tommy with her in the intervals as long as he could be coaxed to stay. Mrs. Beardsley was getting better. The first day she could sit up, after Miss Betsey had made her comfortable with cushions and a footstool, the poor, languid woman put her thin arms about the old lady's neck and kissed her, and dropping her head on that sturdy shoulder, burst into irrepressible sobs.

"Lawful sakes! don't ye do so child! stop right off! Why, you'll be all tuckered out when he gets home ef you do so. Now stop right off!"

"I can't help it," sobbed Tina, "you're so good, Miss Betsey; you're a real angel."

"The mortal! You must be out o' your mind, child. Who ever saw an angel with yaller-gray hair and not but six teeth to show for't?" laughed the good old soul. "You stop cryin' and talkin' about angels and swaller your beef tea, or the doctor'll be scoldin' of you for certain sure."

When Mrs. Beardsley was well enough for change of air, she went into the city to see her sister who had just come back from Europe, and was naturally eager to hear all about Tina's surroundings.

"And have you got any neighbors, dear," she asked after many other questions.

"One," said Justina, smiling.

The question still remains to be answered: "Who was Mrs. Beardsley's neighbor?"

NOT SO BAD AS PAINTED.

Minister Cox Says a Good Word for Turkey—A Contribution for Ireland.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Mr. Moritz Herzberg of this city has received the following letter from Hon. S. S. Cox:

"U. S. LEGATION, CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 6, 1886.—MY DEAR FRIEND HERZBERG: Yours is at hand. I never can or will forget your generous vote for me in 1884. If there were no gratitude in my heart for such a demonstration, I would deserve to be exiled forever from the old eighth assembly district and from the society of good men. You are pleased to think of me again, as resuming a seat in congress and from your district. Yours is one among many such wishes, and coming from afar they seem to be more earnest in their wishes. But I am not yet resigned to leave this post. There is much of interest and of duty here in which I have become absorbed, and if my superiors treat me as I have a right to expect in my work, I may be happy even under the shadow of the sultan's palace.

"In fact, Turkey has not such a bad government as it is painted. There is much of 'home rule' from the early Greek civilization and from municipal and treatal freedom; much more and much better than Ireland has had under the light of the nineteenth century, with positive rule in London and at Dublin Castle. I send you my little contribution, although I have not failed in other quarters. I hope Mr. Parnell will seize the day and make 'home rule' a crystallized and crystalline fact. With respects, etc., S. S. COX."

The check inclosed was for $25 for the benefit of the Parnell fund of the Eighth assembly district.

BOREAS ON A FROLIC.

The Blizzard Goes East and Plays Havoc—A Mt. Washington Zephyr.

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—A furious blizzard prevailed during Thursday night in this vicinity and for a long distance down the eastern coast. At Portland twenty inches of snow has accumulated and ice is still forming. Business is at a standstill. At Westfield, the steeple of the First Congregational church was turned completely over and thrust through the roof of the building into the audience room.

The severest storm of the winter prevailed throughout New England Friday. From fifteen to twenty-four inches of snow have fallen in some parts of Vermont and New Hampshire, accompanied by furious winds, varying in velocity from fifty to sixty-five miles an hour.

DOVER, N. H., Feb. 27.—A rough snowstorm prevailed here all Friday, the wind blowing forty-four miles an hour. Telegraph and telephone wires have suffered and trees have been blown down in many places. At St. Johnsbury, Vt., this has been the worst blizzard of the year.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The velocity of the wind here varied from fifty to seventy miles an hour. The signal office clerk said the velocity at Mt. Washington was nearly 200 miles, and at Cape Lookout still more. Damage to shipping along the coast is feared.

A Novel Feature in Investments.

The whole country, after having undergone a period of depression is now asking itself, what business has least been affected and uninjured?

Such a business, industry or corporation that can make a better showing now than before the crisis, attracts the attention of capital, merits the confidence of investors, and is being eagerly sought for.

There is such a business, and it has heretofore been monopolized by English and Scotch capital until some three hundred millions have been invested in the Ranche and Cattle business of this great country.

Foremost amongst the strongest, richest and most successful American Companies stand the United States Land and Investment Company, 145 Broadway, New York, which is now offering $500,000, First Mortgage six per cent 10-year bonds, for subscription at 90 cash, or at par, upon a novel installment feature which appeals to the farmer as well as the banker, the clerk and mechanic as well as the millionaire, and to all who desire to invest their savings at better rates of interest than any bank will allow.

This company issues certificates of indebtedness in one and five dollars, each representing an installment, and when the investor has purchased $50 of these certificates he becomes entitled to a $100 gold bond, First Mortgage, bearing 6 per cent interest, which he can obtain upon presenting his certificates or forwarding them by letter to the company's office, at 145 Broadway, N. Y.

The remaining $50 due on the bond being payable to the company in monthly installments not exceeding $5.

The bond commences to draw interest on delivery the same as if fully paid. In addition to which the company give as a bonus, free, one fully paid up share of stock of the value of $25.

Those desiring to buy their bonds outright for cash can do so at 10 per cent discount in $100, $500 or $1,000 bonds and receive one, five or ten shares of stock free. The bonds are secured by property owned absolutely by the company, estimated to be worth $3,000,000, and this money received from sale of bonds will be invested in cattle, the income from which it is estimated will yield 30 per cent upon the stock after paying 6 per cent on the bonds.

Applications are being forwarded in great numbers daily, and all those who desire to subscribe should send at once for Prospectuses and full information to the United States Land and Investment Company, 145 Broadway, New York.—'The N. Y. Financier.'

Many suffering people drag themselves about with failing strength, feeling that they are steadily sinking into the grave, when by using Parker's Tonic they would find a cure commencing with the first dose, and vitality and strength surely coming back to them.

"I am 63 years old; have been sick nearly all my life, and ought to know something about medicine by this time. I have used Parker's Tonic freely for more than a year, and consider it the best remedy I have ever known. In fact I now find no other medicine necessary. For weakness, debility, rheumatism and that distressing all-gone ness and pain from which I suffered so long, it has no equal. I do not see how any one can afford to do without so valuable a medicine."—Mrs. Hattie N. Graves, cor. East and Front streets, Providence, R. I.

Briefiets.

—Polo to-night.

—The surveyors engaged in surveying the Evansville "cut off", have completed the survey.

—Trinity church and chapel are closed for repairs. and there will be no service or Sunday school to-morrow.

—The members of W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, G. A. R. and their families will meet in social re-union at post hall this evening.

—There will be a meeting of the Young Men's Christian association to-morrow afternoon at half past three o'clock. All are cordially invited.

—The polo game at the rink this evening, between the Bay Views and the Janesvilles will be an exciting contest, as the teams are very evenly matched.

—Yesterday a little girl baby came to the house of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Welch, of La Prairie, and from present indications, she will stay in the family for some time to come.

—Yesterday afternoon John McCarthy, a young man, had the misfortune to dislocate his right shoulder. The injury which resulted from a fall will confine him to the house for some time.

—The annual meeting of the Rock County Sunday School Association will be held in the S. D. B. church, at Milton Junction, on the 16th and 17th of March next. MRS. FRED GRIFFING, Secretary.

—The Bay Views against the Janesvilles at the rink this evening. The Bay View is the strongest polo team in Milwaukee. The game to-night will be called at 9:15 o'clock, and Mr. Ehlert will play.

—The Court Street M. E. church people enjoyed themselves thoroughly at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Loomis, of the first ward, last evening. There was a large number present and the time was passed very pleasantly.

—Messrs. Wheeler & Stevens, real estate agents, recently sold the W. R. Bryan farm, of 117 acres, in the town of Turtle, the purchase price being $5,616. Also, the Rudolph Bruns temperance billiard hall fixtures for $1,500.

—The Salvation Army have been able, by the kindness of their friends, to add a large bass drum to their orchestra. The psaltry, sackbut, lute and the timbrels seem to have lost in favor since the days of the sacred musicians in Jerusalem.

—Miss Cora Nelson entertained a number of her young friends last evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Nelson, Center avenue. Progressive euchre, prizes and plenty of choice refreshments aided the young people in the enjoyment of the evening.

—The case of William Carroll, charged with an assault with a deadly weapon on the parties who tried to foreclose a chattel mortgage on his tobacco, will come up before Judge Patten next Thursday. Carroll could not get bail, and is now in the county jail, meditating on the danger of fooling with firearms.

—The entertainment at All Souls church last evening in aid of the Sunday school of that society was well attended. An excellent programme was presented, consisting of singing, recitations and plays. The entertainment was greatly enjoyed by the large number of people in attendance, and was a gratifying success in every particular.

—Mr. R. M. Reed, the cigar man on West Milwaukee street, has sold his business to Mr. Stuart Chase, who will conduct the business in future. Mr. Chase is a young man who shares the confidence of a large circle of friends in Janesville and the business under his management will sustain the enviable reputation established for it by Mr. Reed.

—Yesterday afternoon Longfellows' day was observed by the pupils in several departments of our public schools—the high school, the fourth grammar department, the second grammar department and the central school. The exercise were very interesting, and the several programmes of the different gatherings were well rendered by the pupils.

—The greatest musical event of the year, "The Messiah," which will occur at the rink next Wednesday evening, promises to be successful as well as highly entertaining. Already 400 reserved seats tickets have been sold in Janesville, with Beloit and Rockford to hear from. At this rate, standing room will be at a premium. Secure your tickets without delay.

—Mr. John Hyzer has just received a patent on a tobacco spud, which seems to possess many valuable qualities. It consists of a cast iron blade as wide as an ordinary lath, and having shoulders by which it can be fastened to the tin socket. The inventor claims that with this improvement a spud will last longer, besides being cheaper.

Died—At his residence, 59 Montecello avenue, Jersey City Heights, New Jersey, February 19, 1886, suddenly of pneumonia, Charles E. Royce, youngest brother of Rev. Alfred Lee Royce, chaplain of United States navy. The deceased was a prominent and successful business man yet in early manhood. The many friends of Chaplain Royce here will deeply sympathize with him in this great affliction.

—All the members of the Girls' Social club are requested to be present at their room Monday evening, March 1st. One of the teachers from the Institute for the Blind accompanied by some of the pupils will be present with books and other materials illustrating the methods of teaching the blind. The entertainment will be instructive as well as interesting.

—The postponed league polo game at Milwaukee last night between Milwaukee and Oshkosh was won by the Milwaukees in four minutes and thirty eight seconds. The Oshkosh team failed to make a goal, being weakened by the absence of two of their best players, one of them being Captain Wells. After the regular game an exhibition game was played in which two goals were made both by the Milwaukees.

—To-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock there will be a meeting of the O'Connel Branch of the Irish Land League at the Rifles' armory. There will be speeches by well known gentlemen, while songs and other entertaining features will also help to make an enjoyable time. Ladies are cordially invited. On the evening of the seventeenth of March there will be literary exercises at Lappin's hall, to which an admission fee of twenty-five cents will be charged.

—Many of our citizens will be interested to learn that work in the diamond mine near Eagle, Waukesha county, will be commenced some time in May. When operations were suspended it was because of the large accumulation of water in the pit, but a large pump has been built to remove this, so no further trouble is expected. Milwaukee experts pronounce the stone that Colonel Boynton had here during the holidays [to be a genuine diamond worth fully $225.

—The annual tax sale for unpaid city taxes for the year 1885, took place at the city treasurer's office at 10 o'clock this morning. Fery few bidders were in attendance,—in fact, three persons were all who took an interest in the sale besides the treasurer. The number of certificates offered for sale were 29, which aggregated the sum of $286.66, the largest certificate being for $37.72, and the smallest, $1.37. This shows one more certificate than at the sale one year ago, when the amount was $268.01. This is a gratifying showing, and is a good recommend for our people as tax-payers.

—Marshal Hogan has recovered about sixty dollars of the money that was taken from a farmer named Baldwin near Monterey bridge last Wednesday night. The rest of the $145 said to have been taken is still missing. The marshal thinks that it was dropped out when the pocket book was snatched from Baldwin's hand, and was picked up by some one who came along afterwards. It appears to be a dangerous thing for open hearted farmers to draw out a wallet full of money while paying an obliging little boy for his services as a guide, and if there are many incidents like that of Wednesday night the custom will drop out of favor.

—Yesterday afternoon four ladies whose appearance gave no indication of their desperate intentions drove up in front of the high school building and tieing the horse started to visit the various rooms. They came out just before school closed thinking themselves unobserved, got into the buggy again and started to drive off without unfastening their impatient animal. Their progress was necessarily slow as the school premises are rather a heavy weight for any horse to drag, but if a cool headed boy who happened to pass by at the time had not untied the hitching strap the city would probably be without a third ward institution of learning. It is understood that the authorities will let the matter drop if the attempt is not repeated.

—Judge Bennett has returned from Jefferson having finished the February term of court for Jefferson county. The circuit court here adjourned till Monday. Yesterday afternoon the judge heard the testimony in the case of Maggie Hawley vs. Fred F. Hawley. The plaintiff resides in Chicago and is a book keeper in a wholesale millinery establishment there. The defendant is night clerk at the Myers house in this city. The ground upon which the divorce was asked by the plaintiff, was desertion and failure to support. The defendant did not appear in court and made no defense. As court was not in session Judge Bennett did not decide the case, but will do so on Monday. E. F. Dunwiddie, Esq., was the plaintiff's attorney. On Monday evening Judge Bennett goes to Monroe to open court there.

The State vs. Whitney.

When a respectable, upright man, who has resided in our county for thirty-five years, and has been honored by town and other offices, is publicly charged with a villainous crime, and such charge is found to be groundless, such a man is entitled to as broad an exonerats on as can be given him. It is for this reason that the Gazette again refers to the case of the state vs. John Whitney. The charge was one of the gravest that can be made against any man, and it was made by a man who called himself Lee Ervin. This man just became a resident of this state, as he testified, about four months ago, at which time he appeared for the first time in the town of Magnolia on horseback. On the 24th of January, 1886, he was married to a girl whom he knew at the time he married her was not seventeen years of age and therefore prohibited from marrying without the written consent of her guardian which she did not have. After Rev. Mr. Potter had refused to marry them, Ervin took the girl to a county justice of the peace where he sat silent while the girl represented that she was older than she was. These facts were developed in his own cross examination. Twenty-seven days after his marriage this man filed a sworn complaint before Judge Patten, charging John Whitney with having committed adultery with his wife, claiming that his wife had confessed that Whitney had committed the crime in the postoffice at Magnolia between twelve and one o'clock in the day time. No word had been said to Mr. Whitney until the warrant was read to him, when it came like a thunderbolt from a clear sky. He at once prepared to meet the charge, and his neighbors and friends gathered around him and did not leave him until they accompanied him home, honorably discharged. In the meantime two other men came here, claiming to be the father and brother of the suffering husband, but who while here were known by several different names. The girl was the only witness to the fact of crime, and her story differed so materially from her former statements that none of it was probable. She wholly denied, while on the witness stand, any criminal intercourse with the defendant. The district attorney at once stopped the prosecution and on his motion the case was dismissed and after Judge Patten had certified in his docket that the complaint was willful and malicious and without probable cause, the costs of the prosecution were taxed against the man Ervin who made the complaint. It is said that the girl confessed to the district attorney that she was ordered to make the statement against Mr. Whitney by her husband. So ended what seems to have been one of the most villainous attempts to blacken a man's character that has ever been known in our community.

Mr. Whitney goes home with character untarnished and those friends who have stood by him so nobly feel themselves repaid.

TWO FIRE ALARMS.

An Incipient Fire the Hofmeister Tobacco Shed at the foot of Jackson Street.

The Dwelling House of H. E. Pattison, Town of Rock, Destroyed with a Five Acre Tobacco Crop.

The Loss and the Insurance.

At twenty-two minutes to six o'clock last evening, Mrs. Charles Atwood, South Jackson street, telephoned to the central office that the Hofmeister tobacco shed in the fourth ward, was on fire, the alarm being brought to her by a little son of Mr. Harry Daverkosen. The telephone operator sent the alarm to the west side engine house, the firemen understanding him to say "fifth" ward, and away went the department for the Center avenue fire cistean. The department were on a "wild goose chase." Turning the corner from Locust into Holmes street, the engineer of No. 1 steamer thought he saw a fire down Locust street, and this company being some distance in advance of the rest of the department, got to the cistern and quickly laid out one thousand feet of hose down the former street, finding no fire. The rest of the apparatus halted, and the sackmen and other members of the department went in search of the fire, and finding none, orders to return to quarters were given. On reaching "home," it was then learned that a mistake had been made; that the fire was in the Hofmeister tobacco shed, at the foot of Jackson street. Assistant Engineers Horn and Blunk were dispatched to the locality to ascertain the facts. Arriving at the shed they found an incipient fire in progress, which they speedily extinguished. The fire had burned the door leading to the stripping room, also the casing and a 6x6 sill. The fire was slowly at work in a quantity of tobacco. The shed is a large one, containing a large quantity of tobacco, which had not been taken down. The cause of the fire is a mistery, no one had been as the shed for some days. The damage, outside of the smoke, will not exceed ten dollars. The shed was owned by the estate of Jas. Hofmaster, and the tobacco by August Lutz. Both insured with the agency of S. Hayner, in the Hekla.

THE SECOND ALARM.

The second alarm was sounded at 10:15 o'clock last evening, and came by telephone from the watchman at the lower cotton mill. The department was informed that the fire was in the fourth ward, and responded in very quick time. Gaining the street, the whole southern part of the city was illuminated by the flames, and the firemen made rapid progress to reach the scene of the fire. The department on arriving on the corner of Center and Western avenues (Monterey) and seeing that the fire was some distance beyond the Blind Institute, they came to a halt, and by use of the telephone at Mr. Rudolph's, ascertained from Mrs. Little; at the Institution for the Blind, that the fire was beyond the city limits, when orders were given to return.

The fire proved to be the farm house of Mr. H. E. Pattison, about a mile south of the institute, town of Rock. At the time of the fire Mr. Pattison and family were at a neighbors, about a mile south, a son remaining at home, who was engaged in stripping tobacco stored in a portion of the house. In moving a case of tobacco he overturned an oil lamp, which set fire to the building, a two story frame with a wing on each side, was totally destroyed together with most of the contents, including a crop of five acres of tobacco. There was an insurance on the house and contents of $1,400, and $400 on the tobacco, all in the Milwaukee Mechanics with the agency of S. Hayner, of this city. This amount will hardly cover the loss.

I have tried Athlophoros for an attack of rheumatism, and I feel a good deal better than I did before using the medicine. I have not as many pains as I had before. Please send me six bottles. Richard Pfaff, Burr Oak, Wis.

Personal.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Palmer, of the fourth ward, are spending a few days at Oak Hill, a few miles from Palmyra.

—Mrs. Edward Smith, of Mankato, Minnesota, is in the city, the guest of her brother, Mr. W. H. Leonard, and sister, Mrs. Archie Reid.

—Mr. H. D. McKinney, secretary of the Northwestern Trotting Horse Breeders' association, went to St. Paul to-day in the interest of the association.

—Dr. Charles Dewey, of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dewey, Milton avenue, is in the city, called here to attend his sister, who is seriously ill.

There was all the evidences of a coming storm; but when he drew from his pocket a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup then came a calm, for the baby had the croup and would now get well.

Little Willie screams and storms with a burn upon his arm. To little Willie joy is sent, by using Salvation Oil, the great liniment.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

Extracts from a Letter Written by W. S. Squire, Formerly a Resident of Rock County.

LOS ANGELOS, Cal., Feb. 15th, 1886.

We are fairly settled in our new home on the western slope, and agreeable to my promise, I will write you a few lines. We arrived here safe, and we think so far that we are in the most lovely country "on God's footstool." It would do you good to see the hundreds of acres of orchards now just loaded down with ripe oranges. We have had plenty of all kinds of garden sauce and strawberries fresh out of the garden every day this winter. I purchased a small fruit ranche of eighteen acres one quarter of a mile out of the city limits, it is all out to fruit of all kinds, apples, peaches, pears, prunes, apricots, plums, cherries, quinces, figs, berries, oranges, lemons, limes, English walnuts and grapes. I have two kinds of grapes—the raisin grape and the wine grape. All you have to do with the raisin grape is to pick them off and lay them on the ground and they will make as nice raisins as you can find. I have eleven acres of grapes, mostly in full bearing. It is said that from ten to twelve tons of grapes are gathered from an acre when they are from six to seven years old. They bring from ten to eighty dollars per ton, the very early and very late ones bringing a big price. I paid ten thousand dollars for my place.

Los Angeles is a lively city of over four thousand inhabitants. We can see the snow-capped mountains very plain, only about twelve miles away. They are over seven thousand feet higher than we are. We are sixteen miles from the sea shore and have a fresh, bracing breeze every day, warm and nice, not even a white frost.

I have apple trees that are in blossom now and have all sizes of apples on the same tree, some most ripe. I have seen a number of men who came here from the east, who say they could not live there for they had the asthma so bad, but here it did not bother them at all. We are all enjoying good health—my wife gained fourteen pounds in two weeks after we arrived here. I have worked harder since I have been here than at any time in ten years and have felt "tip-top" all the time.

Yours truly,
W. S. SQUIRE.

"Spelling School."

At the high school yesterday afternoon the classes of '86 and '88 engaged in a spelling contest, one hundred and fifty words were taken and the result of the contest is given as follows:

		Words missed.
First—	Mellie Bowles—'88	8
	George E. Keyes—'86	8
Second—	Minnie Nowlan—'86	9
Third—	F. Jackman—'88	10
Fourth—	George Bliss—'88	11
Fifth—	Ella Croft—'87	12
	John Enright—'88	12
	Lee Holloway—'88	12
	Mamie Jones—'88	12
	Lottie Ratheram—'86	12

The class of '86 averaged 91 per cent, and the class of '88 averaged 82 per cent.

The Weather.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 20 degrees above zero. Cloudy, with east wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 28 degrees above zero. Snowing with east wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 10 and 42 degrees above zero.

Origin of the "Patent Outside."

Mr. Kellogg tells an interesting story about how he conceived the "patent outside" scheme. He was a country newspaper publisher in an Illinois town some twenty-five years ago, and was in the habit of printing one side of his paper in the middle of the week and the other half on publication day. On one occasion after his paper had been printed his press broke down. He was not in a central position, and it was no easy thing to get the machine in shape in time to print the other side. As it became more and more apparent that he could not get his paper out on time if he depended on his own press, he made his forms ready and secure, and drove over to a neighboring town some dozen miles away, where he finally got them on another editor's press.

His own press could not be ready for use for several weeks, as one accident followed another. He therefore made an arrangement with his esteemed contemporary by which he set up the type for the local side of his paper and sent his forms over every week. His friend supplied the general and miscellaneous matter from his own columns, and as the papers circulated among entirely different constituencies, the plan worked to a charm, and nobody was a bit the wiser for the fact that the two papers except in their local departments were entirely alike. It then occurred to Mr. Kellogg that a great business could be built up from the idea suggested by his misfortune. The "patent outside" was the result, and though it was never patented, that broken-down press made its owner a millionaire.—Cor. New York Tribune

Chiromancy in a Police Court.

Among new methods for simplifying the unwieldy processes of the law none is more noteworthy and suggestive than the science of chiromancy, which appears to be becoming fashionable in English police courts. It was applied with striking success in two cases. In one of these the prisoner, who was charged with begging, pleaded that he had done hard work, but was now unable to get any; the jailer then examined his hands, declared they showed signs of hard work, and the man was let off with a nominal punishment. In the other case the accused said he was a carpenter, but was out of work. His hands were examined, found soft, and he was sent up.—Chicago Tribune.
